"It is a complicated task to run an installation company these days. That is why the editorial does its best every month to better prepare installers for short-term as well as long-term challenges. We frame these issues in agenda-setting interviews, reports, company cases, expert-articles and exciting news from new and leading suppliers."

installator.dk production

We help produce the right content - text or podcast.

We help develop the idea, ask the right questions and produce the content for the article or podcast the company wants out. Content that the company owns and can use in other relevant contexts.

Content types that work

Native advertising or content marketing are effective tools when it comes to creating value with new and existing customers. We have developed some common formats that arouse the recipient's interest.

Interviews and Q & A's

A Q&A is an article that is prepared in question / answer format. The journalist asks the questions, and the company's spokesperson answers - per. mail or phone. Format is suitable if the company wants to profile itself with an attitude to a specific case or a current topic, or would like to convey its plans and ideas for sustainability work. The question / answer form is very easy to read and gives the reader a quick overview.

Price: DKK 5,500

"We publish the content for you on the company profile. It ends up directly on the front page and is included in the newsletter. We recommend that you share it via the company's LinkedIn profile, so you get even more visibility for the money."

Cases

A case is typically based on a specific task that the company has solved. The focal point of the article will be the result achieved, but also the challenges that have been associated with the task and what the company did to solve them. The case form is well suited to inspire potential customers with the same challenges.

Prices from: DKK 7,000

Portraits

A portrait article is a mention of a person. The occasion can be, for example, an anniversary, company acquisition, new hiring or other events. A portrait is built around an interview that typically comes around the person's career spiced with personal characteristics, attitudes and thoughts. The portrait is good for putting a living face on the company's work with sustainability, with which the reader can identify.
